DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent 2002/0100948 to Yoshihara et al [hereinafter Yoshihara].

Yoshihara discloses a method for pressure-independent temperature determination, comprising:

providing a bridge circuit having a plurality of resistors on a diaphragm, a first resistor pair being positioned near the center of the diaphragm and a second resistor pair being positioned at a distance from the center of the diaphragm; wherein the first and second resistor pairs are positioned on the diaphragm such that tensile elongation of the first resistor pair positioned near the center of the diaphragm corresponds to compression of the second resistor pair positioned at a distance from the center of the diaphragm; the diaphragm is a metal diaphragm, and the first resistor pair is positioned near the center of the diaphragm in an area where elongation maximums occur when pressure acts on the metal diaphragm; the diaphragm is a metal diaphragm, and the second resistor pair is positioned at a distance from the center in an area where compression maximums occur; the method comprising determining, by finite elements method, the area of the metal diaphragm where the elongation or compression maximums occur; the absolute value of the elongation and the absolute value of the compression are identical; the diaphragm is a metal diaphragm, and wherein the configuration of the metal diaphragm is optimized geometrically as part of finite elements method simulation; geometric boundary conditions including at least one of the diameter of the metal diaphragm, the thickness of the metal diaphragm, and the height of the metal diaphragm are taken into account as part of the finite elements method simulation; and the nominal pressure acting on the metal diaphragm is taken into account as part of the finite elements method simulation (see paragraphs 58-61, 75).
